DPhJ press release of March 23th, 2022:

Space is the main theme of the new Junge Sammler

Space is a popular field of collecting for young stamp enthusiasts. The new "Young Collector" deals with space, astronauts and cosmonauts and astrophysics as its main theme. Quite astonishingly, a large number of stamps from the Federal Republic and the GDR deal with this multifaceted topic. The issue will be delivered directly to the letterboxes of our members and readers these days. The issue is always available online a few days earlier.

This issue calls for participation: as many topics have already been dealt with in the DPhJ Forum, links there simply help you to read on. This ranges from the history of space travel to astrophysics. Heiner Schrop also describes how to access and read earlier Junge Sammler issues on the internet. The issues 5/1994 and 2/2011 already dealt with the current main topic. Young stamp enthusiasts and their carers will thus find a huge fund of information and can use it to work on this great topic philatelically. Jonas Vester will present his exhibit "The Race to the Moon" as a young exhibitor. Two puzzle games, a call for participation by Arge Luftfahrt and the well-known Junge Sammlers Quiz by Wolfgang Sander again make reading the issue very entertaining. Jens Petermann also introduces philatelic YouTube channels. There, hundreds of contributions deal with stamp collecting in an entertaining way.

In addition to the main topic, there is also a lot of reading material: Fridolin and Filu have to fight aliens in the comic strip this time. News, the presentation of Arge Österreich and an article on the Austrian artist Hundertwasser, the mini-poster and an article on the new Bond film as well as philatelic questions on overprints and overprints provide a lot of interesting information. In addition, there is the association's own information on the DMM and the foundation competition 2022 in Garbsen, reports from the national rings, group actions in Corona times and the popular beginners' series by Monika Meinecke.
